Code of Conduct Summary

This summary, issued by Firm HR on 15 July 2025, describes the standards of behaviour the firm expects from every employee and contractor in dealings with colleagues, clients and the public. It is a short guide to the full Code of Conduct and applies on engagements and in the office.

Our principles

- Act with integrity: be honest in your work, your time entries and your expense claims.
- Respect others: no harassment, discrimination or bullying, in person or online.
- Protect information: keep client and firm information confidential.
- Be professional: represent the firm well at the client site and in public.
- Speak up: raise concerns early and without fear of retaliation.

Conflicts of interest

Declare any personal, financial or family interest that could affect your judgement on an engagement. Declarations go to your manager and are recorded by the Ethics office. Do not accept gifts from clients or suppliers worth more than $100 without approval.

Working with clients

Be accurate about what the firm can deliver. Do not promise scope, price or dates without the engagement lead's agreement. Treat client staff with the same respect you expect from colleagues.

Raising concerns

Route	Contact
Your manager	First option for most concerns
Firm HR	Conduct, behaviour or workplace issues
Ethics line	Anonymous reporting, available all day, every day

Consequences

Breaches of the Code are handled under the disciplinary procedure and can lead to dismissal. Retaliation against anyone who raises a concern in good faith is itself a breach. Everyone confirms the Code each year.
